High prevalence of baroreflex impairment in patients with peripheral arterial disease. Patients with vascular disease have an increased risk of morbidity and mortality following surgery. The baroreflex may be impaired in patients with coronary artery disease. We hypothesised that patients with peripheral arterial disease (PAD) had impaired baroreflex function as demonstrated by resting sympathetic nerve activity (rSNA) response to hypotension (a decrease in blood pressure following induction of hypotension), compared with healthy subjects. Thirty-three patients with PAD and 33 healthy control subjects were studied. Recordings were taken at rest and while lying with a lower body negative pressure (LBNP) of -10 mmHg for 15 min. Blood pressure and rSNA were monitored. There was no significant difference in age between the PAD and control group ( $p = 0.24$ ). In the control group, lying rSNA rose significantly in response to LBNP from 1.2 (95% CI 0.3 to 1.9) ml min<sup>-1</sup> g<sup>-1</sup> to 1.5 (95% CI 0.6 to 2.4) ml min<sup>-1</sup> g<sup>-1</sup> ( $p = 0.007$ ). However, in the PAD group, lying rSNA did not significantly change in response to LBNP, 0.2 (95% CI -1.0 to 1.3) ml min<sup>-1</sup> g<sup>-1</sup> and 0.2 (95% CI -0.6 to 1.0) ml min<sup>-1</sup> g<sup>-1</sup>, respectively ( $p = 0.07$ ). These findings demonstrate a high prevalence of baroreflex impairment in PAD. This may explain the high susceptibility of these patients to orthostatic intolerance and hypertension following vascular surgery. in the cart. The Noodle Co. Q: How to stop a SoundBlaster Live sound card from constantly changing the volume while playing I want to use my HDA sound card, which has a built in volume control, and would like to give the user the ability to toggle the sound between my computer and the speakers when I am using the speakers (a small "speaker" is built into my computer which I use to play music, podcasts, and videos). A: The real fix is to open the volume control panel of Windows, turn up the volume, turn the speakers on or off, then turn down the volume. You should do this before trying to use your sound card. However, if you're using ALSA, if you run `gst-inspect alsasrc`, you'll see a device called "Playback" and a volume control that's used. If you turn your speakers on and off while you're playing, while the volume control is "Switched Off", you'll be back to normal when you turn your speakers on again. S.-L. L., N. C. N., C. J. H., D.
